

I'm concerned by Sinclair Broadcast Group's plan to air "Stolen Honor". It appears that it intends to present this work as a documentary when in reality it is a partisan political statement. This is a rather obvious attempt to influence public opinion just before a national election. Sinclair has the obligation to identify opinion pieces as such and give equal time and equal quality of time to opposing points of view. Sinclair's responsibilities with regard to use of public airwaves and media ethics are clear and I expect the FCC to watch this matter very closely and take appropriate action to prevent abuse of power by Sinclair.
